

VOUGHT EXPECTED SOLDIERS' ATTACK

Former La Crosse Man in Letter Dated May 8 Said
Rumor of Impending
Attack Was General

AMERICANS ALWAYS IN SUSPENSE

In Letter to His Father He Says They Are Constantly Ready for Trouble

M. I. Vought, formerly of La Crosse, who was reported Monday to have been wounded in defending his wife and sister from attack by Mexican soldiers in Xicotencatl, Tamaulipas, Mexico, was hourly expecting trouble with the revolutionists, according to a letter received by his father, Thomas L. Vought, 2303 Loomis street. The letter is dated May 8, but was only delivered Monday owing to the poor communication from the interior of Mexico.

Mr. Vought's letter gives a graphic picture of the life of foreigners in Mexico at the present time. At the time the letter was written, Mr. Vought said that Xicotencatl had been threatened with attack several times, and that the revolutionists were very strong in Tamaulipas. The letter also urges the United States to recognize the revolt against the Huerta government. He declares that with the consent of Uncle Sam the constitutionalists would soon be able to drive the Huerta regime out.

The Letter

My Dear Father:

"We have been receiving very little mail of any description from any direction for the last few weeks owing to the fact that the lines of communication have all been cut in every direction. The only way we have been able to receive mail from the states has been by boat. For this reason we have not answered your last letters, knowing that ours would not go through, and thinking every day that probably the lines would be open in a few days. We are still practically cut off from all communication, with the exception of Tampico and the ship lines. We are told that the Matamoros line to the border is now open, so will try to get a few lines to you.

"Things have been a little exciting here for a time, as the revolutionary cause has struck this region now and we have been threatened with attack here in this town a couple of times. One time they got us out at midnight to go over to a neighboring plantation where there are some other Americans for safety, but it all turned out to be a scare only as the revolutionists went to the west of us and did not come through the town as threatened. Then the capital of the state has been in a scare for a couple of weeks or more and practically besieged, an attack having been made one day in which some sixty were killed on both sides besides many wounded. The revolutionists are pretty strong throughout the state now and there is no knowing what moment something serious may arise and cause another scare. We are holding ourselves in readiness to move at a moment's notice, though at present we feel safer here than anywhere else in this state."

WIFE SHOTS HUSBAND AS HE ENTERS HOUSE THINKING HIM BURGLAR

CHICAGO, June 4.—Mrs. Louise Van Kuren, 42, shot and instantly killed her husband, John B. Van Kuren, early today when he attempted to force his way into her apartment at 817 East Sixty-first street. After the shooting she surrendered to the police and declared that she mistook her husband for a burglar.

Van Kuren is a hat dealer in Hyde Park, a suburb. He and his wife quarrelled and have been separated for six months.

Shortly after midnight Mrs. Van Kuren heard a noise at her door, she told the police. She called, but there was no response and the man went away. An hour later he returned again, fumbled at the door knob, but when she called he again retreated.

Mrs. Van Kuren obtained a revolver and waited. Just before daylight she heard the man at the door again. He poked his arm through the glass of the door, she said, and attempted to unfasten the latch. She fired one shot. The bullet entered the man's head and he fell dead in the hallway.

Too frightened to open the door, Mrs. Van Kuren telephoned the police. When they arrived she learned that the man she had killed was her husband. She is being detained.

H. E. Van Kuren, brother of the slain merchant, charged that his brother was shot by another man who was in the apartment at the time. He declared Mrs. Van Kuren confessed to the shooting to shield the real slayer.

MADISON, Wis., June 4.—(Special.)—The railroad commission today directed the Ettrick Telephone company and the La Crosse Telephone company to make a physical connection of their lines so that subscribers of both companies may communicate from the stations installed in their houses and places of business respectively. Each of the companies is to pay one-half the expense of making such connection. This is the second decision of the commission under the so-called physical connection law. The first decision applied to toll rates. This decision announced today applies to regular subscribers.

COMPRESSED AIR FATAL

CHICAGO, June 4.—"Puffed up" by compressed air, George Martina, 35, is dying at the county hospital today and William Fischer and Frank Marschka, two laborers, are being held by the police, charged with inhuman treatment of the boy. Young Martina started to work at the Schultz piano factory today. One of the men suggested that he should be "initiated." Fischer and Marschka, according to the police, held the boy and placed the hose from a compressed air tank to his lips. His abdomen was distended and his intestines pushed out of place and torn.

He traveled along the surface of the Detroit river several miles, but this afternoon was stranded near Ecorse, Mich.

LONG SHOT WINS BIG ENGLISH RACE

Aboyner at 100 to 1 Wins
Epsom Derby When
Cragonour Is Dis-
qualified

FINISH CLOSE FOR THREE LEADERS

Cragonour First by Head
and Aboyner But a Neck Ahead of Louvois at Close of the Sprint

EPSOM, England, June 4.—A. Cunliffe's Aboyner, a "dark horse," and a 100 to 1 shot, this afternoon was declared winner of the famous Epsom Derby on historic Epsom Downs, when C. Bower Ismay's Cragonour, which finished first, was disqualified for bumping in the stretch.

Favorite Barred Out

Cragonour, the favorite, was heavily backed at six to four and when he finished first by a nose, there was jubilation in the paddock and boxes, which changed to pandemonium when the horse was disqualified. While the heavy betters were bemoaning their losses there was almost a riot around the betting stalls, where those who had played Aboyner crowded to get their money. Many persons, mostly of the poorer classes, who always take a chance on a long shot, placed small sums on the 100 to 1 winner, and they "made a clearing." The bookies were thunderstruck, but not heavy losers, considering the heavy play on the other entries.

It was a great day for Epsom Downs, today's race drawing out about the biggest race crowd on record. The king and queen were there and received special attention, because his majesty had a horse in the big race.

Great Sport, 20 to 1, which finished fourth was awarded third place in the race. W. Raphael's Louvois, which won the Newmarket 2,000 guineas six weeks ago, was second. Cragonour was first only by a head, and Aboyner led Louvois by a neck. Fifteen horses ran.

No American owned horse was among the starters, for the first time in several years. The race was for three-year-old colts and fillies, 126 and 123 pounds respectively, and was worth about $35,000 to the winner. Vast crowds thronged the Downs, coming hours before time for the opening event. Thousands came from London in all sorts of vehicles and on foot. The sudden popularity of the London motor bus was a feature of the day. More than 150 of the vehicles were chartered by peers, peeresses and members of parliament, who probably rode in them for the first time in their lives.

Ovation For Royalty

King George and Queen Mary who arrived just before the first race of the afternoon, received a tremendous reception, the more cordial perhaps, because the king had a well favored entry, Anmer, in the big race. The favorites were W. Raphael's Louvois, winner of the two thousand guineas at Liverpool, and C. B. Ismay's Cragonour, second in the same race.

The field was one of the largest that ever started in the Derby. August Belmont had his Vudvain VI entered and Harry Payne Whitney had several entries, but both withdrew their horses, leaving no Americans in the running.

Suffragette Trampled

Miss Elizabeth Davidson, 35 years old, a London suffragette, rushed out on Epsom Downs course this afternoon and seized Anmer by the bridle as King George's entry was rounding Tattenham corner. Horse and rider, Jockey Jones, fell on her and she was so badly trampled that those who picked her up thought her dead. When doctors had worked over her many minutes, Miss Davidson showed signs of life and she was rushed to a hospital where it was said she was seriously and probably fatally injured.

SENATE SENDS HOT REPLY TO M'GOVERN

Call Down Governor for Trying to Dictate to Solons Grown Gray
in Service

DENY THEY HAVE DONE NOTHING

Assert that Needs of Big Legislation Require
Recess for Investigation

MADISON, Wis., June 4.—(Special.)—The senate today delivered its answer to Governor McGovern's recent message urging defeat of the recess plan in a resolution introduced by Senator Scott. The chief clerk was directed to send a message to the governor answering his contentions on the progress of the legislature. The resolution was adopted by vote of 22 to 8.

The message is interpreted as hurling defiance in the face of the executive. On the floor Senator Ackley opposed it on the ground that water power developments would be still further retarded in his section of the state. Senators Linley and Huston supported it in speeches. Linley denied that this legislature was a "do nothing" body. He cited the governor's calling of a special session a year ago to complete important legislation as justification for a similar course now.

The Resolution

Whereas, the senate has adopted a resolution for a recess of the legislature until January, 1914, and Whereas, the governor has sent to the legislature a special message against such a recess, in which he said: "Why adjourn now?"

If any good reasons can be given for this departure they should be made public. The motives prompting such action should be such as to bear public scrutiny. Now, therefore,

Be it resolved, by the senate, that the chief clerk be and hereby is directed to deliver the following message to the governor:

"One thousand seven hundred and fifty bills have been introduced in this legislature. This exceeds the number of bills introduced at any other session in many years. So diligent has this legislature been that in a few days all of these bills will have been finally acted upon, except those relating to water powers, direct marketing and mothers' pensions. At all sessions of the Wisconsin legislature, and of every other legislative body in the world, except in cases of unusual emergency or of matters previously well investigated by the legislature, the important measures are not passed until toward the end of the session. The reason for this is that legislative bodies do not as a rule act hastily upon important legislation, but investigate, deliberate and consider until the best law the body can work out is written. The first half of the chapters passed by any session of the legislature would lead one unfamiliar with the necessary methods of legislation to conclude that that particular legislature was a do-nothing body. But the formal process of passing laws through the two houses is but a minor part of their enactment. In almost every instance in the case of important bills the major part of the time is used before the bill is reported from committee.

"During some sessions of the legislature the political situation is quiet; at such times public attention is directed toward important measures being considered. During some other sessions of the legislature the political situation is disturbed and the attention of the public is likely to be directed to these disturbances. The public, however, is likely to be distracted from attention to measures much more than members of the legislature and others directly concerned in enacting of important legislation.

Many Important Laws

"During this session of the legislature, the political situation has been subject to some disturbance, due to national rather than state causes. It is not remarkable that those who have devoted the major portion of their time and attention to politics should lose sight of the important measures this legislature has considered or is in the process of passing. The senate calls attention to the fact that many important laws have been enacted at this session, and that many more important laws, including most of the larger and more comprehensive measures, some of which will compare with the big bills of other sessions, are very nearly worked out or very near the final stage of passage. An examination of the legislative files will demonstrate that this legislature has done and is doing its share of constructive work.

"With this volume of work, which the legislature has not dodged or shirked, it has not been possible to give adequate investigation or consideration to the subject of water powers, direct marketing or mothers' pensions. Precipitancy has no part in the constructive progressivism that has made Wisconsin the leader of the progressive movement. Wisconsin owes its reputation for sound progressive legislation in large measure to its special recess committees of the legislature. Had any one of

J. HAM WITH THE PINK WHISKERS PAINED BY JIBES OF REPORTERS

WASHINGTON, June 4.—James Hamilton Lewis, United States senator from Illinois, is tired of being identified by his whiskers and the kind of clothes that he wears. J. Ham announced this fact today, his blue eyes veiled with actual pain. He said he didn't care if the "newspaper boys" occasionally had fun with him, but that he did not think he was getting a square deal.

"The boys have seen me fighting along here for a good many years trying to make good," he said. "I believe I have just a little something in me besides—shall we say, my eccentricities—and these eccentricities get all the attention. I'd like to be treated in a dignified manner once in a while."

Lewis' outburst was occasioned by a timid question as to the truth of the report that he was going to shave off his whiskers. Senator Lewis lost his usual calm when the query was propounded. Lewis has been a senator only a few months, but in that time he has taken a place at the head of the democratic council tables and has been made "whip" of the senate—a job that invests him with the duty of keeping all wavering democrats in line during the tariff bill fights.

ASSEMBLY REJECTS PLAN TO RECESS

By Vote of 57 to 26 Lower House Refuses to Concur in the Senate
Measure

POLITICS PLAY PART IN RESULT

Democrats and Socialists
Combine with McGovern Men Against the Resolution

MADISON, Wis., June 4.—(Special.)—The resolution to recess the legislature from June 12 to January 13, which passed the senate easily a week ago, was rejected by the assembly last night by a vote of 57 to 26. The democrats and socialists joined with the administration leaders in opposing the plan, and won the fight.

Politics in Debate

Factional politics played a large part in the debate, which was led by Assemblyman Anderson for the affirmative and Assemblyman Bove for the opposition. Bove declared a recess would mean large unnecessary expense and that there was no call for it. Anderson accused the administration side and that there was no call for it. Anderson accused the administration side of lining up for emancipation of the pure food law and against the big fire insurance bill of the session. Peavey replied that for one he was not ashamed of his record, and he "didn't care what the gentleman from Florence thought about it." Anderson spoke for deliberate investigation of such big questions as waterpowers and marketing.

The personalities took such a turn that Don C. Hall handed out a crisp rebuke that brought a round of applause. He said the discussion on every big measure ended with "shafts of political oratory by two would-be political leaders, of whom we are supposed by our respective votes to be meek followers."

The Vote

The roll call on the recess resolution follows:
For non-concurrence—Bartingale, Bingham, Bove, Conway, August Dietrich, J. Dietrich, Dolan, Dorn, Everett, Frederick, Gannon, Gorecki, Giudice, Don C. Hall, Judson Hall, Hamats, Hansen, Hedding, Hinkel, Hoverson, Jennings, Larsen, Laursen, Mahon, Manning, Millar, Minkley, Murphy, Nye, O'Connor, O'Day, Ott, Paul, Peavey, Pfennig, Pickart, Potts, Ringle, Roessler, Roethe, Scanlan, Schilling, Schnitzler, Schultz, Shatt, Smart, Smith, Stempier, N. L. Stewart, Urquhart, Viebahn, Vint, Walsh, Whiteside, Zillier, Zinn—57.

Against non-concurrence—Allison

Anderson, Chinnock, Clancy, Engbreten, Goff, Gulickson, Holmes, Hood, Jensen, K. A. Johnson, L. L. Johnson, Kneen, Lentz, McComb, Meland, Mory, Nordman, Rhea, Richardson, Rosa, Sawyer, Schilder, Spoor, T. A. Stewart, Hull—26.

The assembly rejected the Schnitzler substitute to the Rosa mother's pension bill after a long and bitter fight, and then engrossed the Rosa measure which provides for administration by judges. The Schnitzler measure was rejected by a vote of 56 to 28. The engrossment of the Rosa bill was voted, 77 to 6. Assemblyman Mahon, McGovern leader, announced he did not regard it as a progressive measure but because the party platform called for mother's pension legislation he would vote for it. Mr. Peavey made the same explanation. The votes in opposition were by Judson, Hall, Hanson, Murphy, Scanlan, Schultz and Whiteside.

FIND ARMS IN BELFAST

LONDON, June 4.—Replying to questions in the house of commons this afternoon, Secretary for Ireland Birrell, admitted that British customs officials yesterday seized 500 rifles in Belfast. They were, he said, apparently of Italian origin and not from Germany as first reported. The arms were shipped to an organization of Ulsterites opposed to Irish home rule and were in packages labeled "Electrical fixtures."

Wisconsin Senator Says
Solons Should Stand in Attitude of Judge on Legislation

WASHINGTON, June 4.—That a legislator should stand in the same attitude as a judge, is the belief of Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, as told to the senate committee investigating Wilson's charges of lobbying yesterday. Senator La Follette said he would make it an offense to speak privately to a representative or senator about legislation.

Senator La Follette of Wisconsin was one of the most interesting witnesses of the day.

In response to letters from zinc land owners in his state, the senator said, he asked Senator Stone if it would be advisable for them to come to Washington to present their views against a reduction in zinc tariff rates. As a result he wrote them not to come, as it probably would do no good.

Describes Interview

Four years ago Senator La Follette said he was interviewed in regard to hides, the interviewer informing him that he had already engaged a page or two of advertisement in his magazine. "I told him if he didn't hurry to the telegraph office I would beat him in ordering a cancellation of his advertisement," he added.

Replying to questions about persons being maintained in Washington to look after legislation, Senator La Follette said the American Federation of Labor and the Seamen's union kept men here.

"Under my definition of the term that is lobbying," he said.

Indian interests, he said, kept men here, his understanding being that there was an organization of lawyers in Washington that worked up claims. He said he had felt the influence of that organization in Wisconsin Indian matters.

"Years ago lobbying was of a coarser kind than at present," the senator added. "The old bargain and sale method is out of date. Later the interests elected men to look out for them from the inside. In the last six or seven years the representatives of the special interests have fast disappeared.

"A legislator should stand in the same attitude as a judge," Senator La Follette said. "I would make it an offense to speak privately to a member or senator about public business."

The investigators let their search for the lobbyist go by the board for a couple of hours today while they helped Senator "Uncle Ike" Stephenson, the forgetful Croesus from Wisconsin, enumerate his various property holdings.

Uncle Ike Willing

Not that "Uncle Ike" was secretive at all. The aged multi-millionaire chewed tobacco fervently and rambled off into by-paths of reminiscence. He modestly talked about all his farms; discussed the milk giving ability of Pauline Wayne, late cow-in-ordinary to the White house, and other things. He would be in the midst of the recital of the days when he was a lumber cook, when a committee man would remind him of a copper or iron mine, or some paper mills, with a few million dollars investment that he'd forgotten all about.

The committee didn't get much information about lobbyists from Stephenson. It did, however, get a few more names from several other senators, but no positive information as to the existence of a "paid lobby here. Subpoenas for fifteen alleged lobbyists were issued. The senators who testified were: Lane of Oregon; Martine, New Jersey; Stephenson, Wisconsin; O'Gorman, New York; Owen, Oklahoma; Newlands, Nevada.

The witnesses summoned were: Aaron Gave, Denver, Col.; Dr. S. W. McClure, secretary of the Wool Growers' association; Edward F. Dickinson and Jules Gotchaux of Louisiana; Sidney Ballew, representing Hawaiian sugar interests in Washington; E. E. Paxton and H. D. Mead, manufacturers' agents of Washington; W. G. Smith and J. F. Hamburg, New York; H. T. Alexander, manufacturer of Trenton, N. J., and Frank Gorman and John Carroll of Washington.

MOB THREATENS JAIL

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 4.—Danger of a lynching and an attack on the jail here was eliminated today when a negro charged with the killing of Patrolman Hickey shot on Sunday, was rushed to Chattanooga for safe keeping. Last night a mob broke into a hardware store here and took guns and ammunition valued at about $700. They then started for the jail, firing at and threatening to dynamite the city prison. The men lacked a leader, however, and the authorities finally succeeded in dispersing them.

STRIKING COOPER ENDS OWN LIFE

Joseph Chuta Hangs Himself in Fit of Despondency; No Motive Is Known

BODY IS FOUND BY BROTHER

Pulmotor Taken to Scene
but Doctor Pronounced Life Extinct; Machine Not Used

Joseph Chuta, a member of the Coopers' union which has been out on a strike for more than two months, ended his life last evening by hanging himself in a wooded back of his home, 1016 Barnum street. Despondency is believed to be the motive for his action; the young man having left no note or word giving the cause of his deed.

The body was discovered at about 6:30 o'clock by a younger brother hanging from a rafter in the woodshed with the feet dragging upon the floor. Frank Chuta, another brother summoned to the scene, cut the body down and called Dr. C. H. Harquardt who told Chief of Police John Webber, who arrived shortly after with the pulmotor, that it was useless to try to revive the man, death having been caused by strangulation. No attempt was made to use the new machine.

No Apparent Reason

That the suicide had made threats to end his life on several occasions was admitted by members of the family but because of the fact that he had no apparent reason for such an act no importance was attached to his statements.

"He just got tired of it all," said a sister, "and decided to end his life. He knew of no reason for his despondency. He was not in trouble with anyone and got along well at home."

Chuta was seen by a neighbor shortly before six o'clock entering the alley back of the house. The body was found about half an hour later. The young man's father had been in the shed just a few moments before six o'clock but saw no one there.

A search of the young man's favorite haunts in the south part of the city was made by the police last evening in the hope that a clue to his whereabouts yesterday afternoon could be discovered but no one was located who had seen him. His family do not know where he spent the afternoon.

Official is Officious

A suspicion that officers of the Coopers' union may be able to shed some light on the affair was caused by the statement from one of the family to the effect that as soon as the news of the suicide became noised about, an officer of the union hastened to members of the family and urged them to keep all details of the affair from the newspaper reporters and others. He gave as his reason for attempting to cloud the affair in a cloak of mystery, a vague statement that the "papers would print an exaggerated account of his affairs."

Members of the family said that Chuta had no trouble with the officers of the union. He was receiving $5 a week from the union while on the strike.

Man of Good Character

Joseph Chuta was 33 years old and was born and reared in La Crosse. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chuta and made his home with his parents. He was not married. He bore the reputation of a hard worker and was popular among his associates.

He is survived by his parents, two sisters, Mrs. Mathias Arentz of Bangor, and Miss Marie Chuta, and four brothers, Frank, John, Thomas and Albert, all living in La Crosse.

The funeral services will be held in St. Wencelaus church at nine o'clock tomorrow morning. Burial will take place in the Catholic cemetery.

DAKOTA COLDER THAN THE ARCTIC

WINNIPEG, Man., June 4.—Hardships of arctic exploration are little if any harder than winter hardships of pioneer settlers on the plains of North Dakota and Manitoba, according to Explorer Stefansson, and he should know, as he was born in Manitoba and has spent seven years in the Arctic circle.

"Up there the blizzards are not as bad as in North Dakota or Southern Manitoba. The thermometer goes lower, of course, but there is little, if any wind," he said. "I have suffered more in Manitoba."

LOCUST SCARE EXAGGERATED

JOPLIN, Mo., June 4.—Reported invasion of the 17 year locusts in Missouri and parts of Kansas are largely exaggerated, according to reports received at the headquarters of the Southwestern Millers' association here. Officials say that the insects have not appeared in any large number and have done little damage.

HOW CAMILLE DE VERLAC BECAME FAMOUS FOR THE BEAUTY OF HER HANDS AND ARMS

Free Prescription That Can Be Prepared At Home.

Camille de Verlac, famous for the beauty of her hands and arms, in a recent interview says: "If every woman knew about the prescription that has caused all this talk about my hands and arms they could make their hands and arms just as beautiful as mine. I am glad to have the opportunity to give my recipe free to the world. It will help every woman to improve her personal appearance."

When I asked her if she would allow me to publish the prescription, she quickly answered: "Certainly, only too glad to have you do it." Turning to a desk, she wrote on a slip of paper and handed it to me. Here it is: "Go to any drug store, get a one-ounce bottle of Kulu compound. Pour the entire contents into a two-ounce bottle, add quarter ounce witch hazel, then fill with water. Apply night and morning. This prescription gives the skin a velvety softness and obliterates all defects such as freckles, tan, sun spots, roughness and ruddiness. A single application works a marvelous transformation." It can be applied to the neck and shoulders with equally gratifying results. It is absolutely harmless and will positively not stimulate or produce a growth of hair. It is deliciously cool and soothing and is not affected by perspiration. It will not rub off.

DECLARE WAR ON THE BLIND PIGGERS

PRESTON, Minn., June 4.—District court convened again Monday after adjournment for Decoration day.

The whole term of court so far has been taken up trying blind piggers. The Law and Order League of Preston has been vigorous in its prosecution of the blind piggers and it is the belief and hope of all that Preston has rid itself of blind piggers for a long time to come.

At the last November term of court John Garletz, Sr., and his son John Ross Garletz were both indicted for blind piggering. John Garletz, Sr., was tried on one indictment and found guilty and given a thirty days' sentence and $100 fine, together with costs, but sentence and payment of fine was suspended on good behavior and his reporting to the Sheriff once a month until this term of court.

Rumors have been current ever since last term of court that Mr. Garletz went at his old business as vigorously as he ever had prosecuted it, with the result that Marshal George Dabach appeared before Judge Kingsley at this term of court with a bottle of beer as evidence, and other witnesses who had purchased could have been secured but this was enough and Judge Kingsley ordered Garletz, Sr., taken into custody and locked up in jail at once. Another indictment was secured against him at this term of court to which he pleaded guilty and he was given a further sentence so that the total jail sentence now for John Garletz, Sr., to serve is five months and ten days.

His son John Ross Garletz was found guilty Monday of blind piggering and he was taken to jail so that both father and son were in jail Monday night.

Today when sentence was imposed on John Ross Garletz, Judge Kingsley had been importuned to give him a suspended sentence which he did. His sentence was two months in jail and a $100 fine and costs, but all suspended on good behavior and reporting to the sheriff on the first Monday of each month until next term of court.

Preston has been infested with blind piggers each and every year that the town has gone dry and the residents are determined to rid themselves of them and it is with the results obtained so far we are on a good way.

ASSAILANT GIVEN 106 YEAR TERM

CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 4.—Frederick Clark, who assaulted Mrs. Little Snively and her niece at Orin Junction last week, was brought here today enroute to the penitentiary at Rawlins, to serve sentences aggregating a minimum of 106 years. He was sentenced to 35 years on each of two charges of assault and to from ten to twelve years on each of three charges of robbery.

Judge C. E. Winter made a special trip to Douglas to receive Clark's plea of guilty, fearing that violence might be attempted.

DENIES MEAT SCARCITY

COMMISSION MAN SAYS CATTLE AND HOGS SELL CHEAPER THAN BEFORE BUT RETAILERS KEEP UP PRICE

CHICAGO, June 4.—Denial of the statements issued recently by Chicago packers that the high price of meat to the consumer was the result of a big shortage in the market, was made by Everett C. Brown, president of a local commission concern, in a detailed statement given out today.

Brown quoted market figures to show that steers on hoof are selling from $25 to $40 a head less than last year; that heifers and small cattle are selling from $10 to $25 a head less; that hogs are selling from $2 to $4 a head less; and that sheep and lambs are selling from $1 to $3 a head less.

"The packers," declared Brown, "are not benefitting by the lower prices. The difference is being gobbled up by the grocers and butchers, who in spite of lower prices haven't lowered their prices to the consumers."

PROFESSOR IN RIVER

POST GRADUATE STUDENT AT COLUMBIA FOUND IN HARLEM RIVER AFTER EXAMINATIONS

NEW YORK, June 4.—An autopsy will be held today in an effort to determine whether Prof. Benjamin Chatham Gibson, a student at the teachers' college of Columbia university, was murdered and robbed and his body thrown into the Harlem river, where it was discovered after Gibson had been missing ten days. The fact that a gold watch, diamond stick pin and other valuables known to have been in Gibson's possession were missing from the body has led some of his friends to believe that he may have been slain. There were no marks of violence on the body, however, and a more thorough examination will be necessary to determine the exact cause of death. He was seeking a bachelor of science degree at Columbia. Despite the theory of possible murder advanced, a majority of those who knew him believe that he broke down under the nervous strain in taking the examinations, wandered away and either fell or threw himself into the river.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

When Bennie First Fed The Gobbles

Bennie Ran to the House.

JACK and Evelyn were to go to visit in the country as soon as school closed. They were to stay at a farm, and many were the questions they asked daddy about the nice things they expected to see there.

"You will find the barnyard a very jolly place," daddy said. "In it there may be horses, cows, sheep, pigs, chickens, geese, ducks—yes, and I shouldn't be surprised if there were a turkey gobbler or so strutting around looking as if he owned the whole place."

"Once I knew a little boy who went to visit at a farm," daddy went on. "He had been to other farms, and he knew all about horses, cows, pigs, chickens and things of that kind. He always asked to feed the chickens."

"So in the morning when he had eaten his breakfast in the big airy kitchen he said to Aunt Emma:

"Please may I go out and feed the chickens, Aunt Emma?"

"Aunt Emma smiled and said as soon as she had cleared off the table there would be some scraps which he could take to them."

"So after awhile she gave the little chap, whose name was Bennie, a brown basket in which were bits of food from the table. Bennie put on his little hat and, taking the basket in his hand, started out for the barnyard."

"He opened the gate very carefully and, going in, stood in the middle of the yard looking about for the chickens. Some of them were scratching in the dust, but he knew that a great many others were in the barn."

"So Bennie raised his voice and called 'Chickie, chickie' as loud as he could."

"Although Bennie was a stranger, they saw the little basket and came running to find out what was in it. They knew that baskets generally mean something good to eat."

"Ducks and geese came too. Bennie was a little timid about geese, and he threw some scraps of bread away out where the geese were, and then he backed up toward the gate. Geese sometimes hiss at little boys, but when they are busy eating of course they can't do this."

"The basket was empty now, and Bennie, swinging it in his hand, had almost reached the gate."

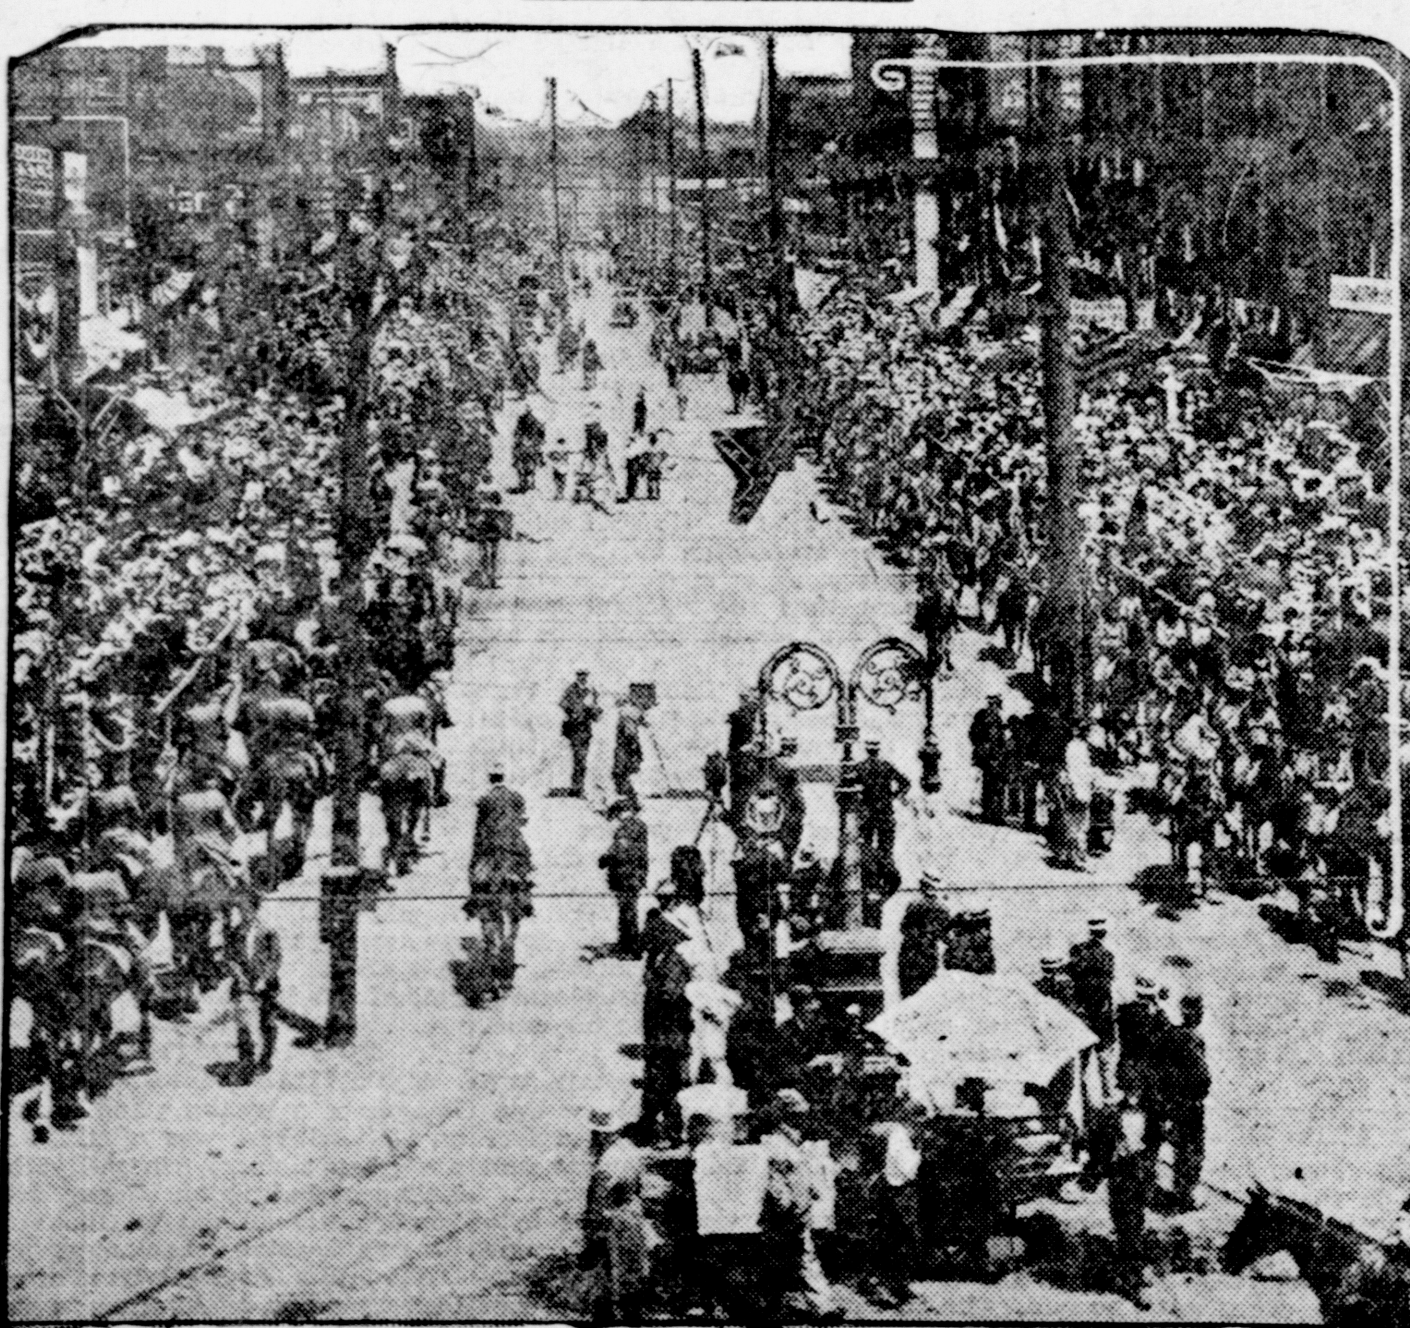

"Just then a big bronze bird stalked out of the barn and, seeing the other fowls eating, came rushing out with a fierce 'Gobble, gobble!'"

"Bennie, frightened, turned and ran to the house."

"Oh, Aunt Emma," he shrieked; "there's a big bird out there with a whole mill on his back, and he chased me out of the barnyard!"

"But now Bennie knows a turkey when he sees one, and he blushes when his folks tell this story about him."

Thousands of Confederate veterans and their friends from all over the South assembled at Chattanooga last week for the annual United Confederate reunion. The crowning event of the week was the parade of the veterans through the streets of Chattanooga. It is estimated that 12,000 ex-Confederate soldiers and 3,000 others were in line.

AND THE WEEKLIESPerhaps no editorial incident in recent years aroused more widespread comment than the removal
of Norman Hapgood as editor of Collier's, Mr. Collier himself resuming editorial direction of "The National Weekly." Mr. Hapgood's leaning toward Wilson, although maintaining a kindly attitude toward Colonel Roosevelt, was followed by his sudden retirement from Collier's sanctum and the equally sudden mid-campaign "flop" of Collier's to the support of the bull moose.Now, again, Norman Hapgood is the subject of much favorable newspaper and magazine advertising,
the occasion being his purchase of Harper's Weekly, the sale of which by Colonel Harvey, its editor, followed
that paper's "flop" against Wilson
after a tilt with the then governor,
and its "flop" back to him after his nomination.Colonel Harvey, in the current issue, is quoted as saying the sale was due to the fact that the Weekly was not paying, and the new editor resents the suggestion that it failed
to pay because its writers were inefficient. No writer, however, has discussed the real reason why it did not pay—the fact that it was out of step
with the movement of the time and lacked accord with the views of the public it sought to serve.The public will experience a renewed interest in Harper's under the control of an able and abreast-of-the-
times man like Norman Hapgood.
Much has been printed about him of
late, but that which most interested
us was an editorial by Richard Lloyd Jones, editor of the Madison State Journal. Editor Jones, who was for years personally associated with Mr.
Hapgood on the staff of Collier's,
says:"Harper's Weekly once made history. Those were the days when George William Curtis made his pen
a power and Thomas Nast put Tweed
in the penitentiary by drawing accusing and convicting cartoons. Since those days Harper's Weekly has fallen into the hands of complacent conservatism. Pursuing such a policy
no longer pays as Colonel Harvey,
the present editor frankly admits,
nor does it longer pay to subsidize
a paper that protests against progress. And so in the course of human events this historic periodicalpasses into new hands; these hands are Norman Hapgood's. This means
new life to Harper's Weekly. Again
this paper becomes pledged to progress. It was Norman Hapgood's editorial genius coupled with his editorial integrity which contributed
most to the rapid rise and potential power of Collier's Weekly. Those who through his nine years of administration over the editorial pages
of Collier's became his friends and
followers will be glad to greet him
again in his new editorial emporium.
What's in a name? The principles and the ideals are the thing."Should I ever quit this job,"
he once said to the writer, "I would probably retire to my New Hampshire home and devote myself purely to the work of letters.""When, during the heated close of the national campaign, his break with Collier's came, the writer expressed the hope that he would not plan to step out of the field of national journalism. Hapgood replied, 'The battle is too big and too worthwhile.' No true general would retire from the field of battle to take a chair at West Point. Norman Hapgood is a general in the army that is fighting for the common good. Through him
the name of Harper's Weekly will again stand for the highest and loftiest purposes as years ago it did
under the editorship of George William Curtis. The rich traditions of Harper's Weekly's richest days could be bequeathed to no better hands
than Hapgood's."AN OUTCRY FROM THE OTHER SIDETo the chorus of protected industries against a reduction in the present tariff, is added the lusty voice of the jewelers who cry out against an increase of duties from 10 to 20 per cent on cut stones, as is proposed by the Underwood bill.The cry of the jewelers is raised
through a committee on tariff schedule, with headquarters in New York.
This committee has formulated a written protest, which has been sent
to every senator and representative,
as well as to all the newspapers of the country. And so we have protests against an increase, as well as
protests against a decrease in duties
on imports.The jewelers cite the fact that previous to the adoption of the Wilson
bill the duty on precious stones was 10 per cent. That rate, in 1892, produced a revenue of $1,238,000 on imports valued at $12,882,000. However, in 1895, after the Wilson bill
had raised the duty to 25 per cent,
the revenue was $804,000 on $4-725,000 of imports. In 1896 the revenue was $1,096,000 and in 1897 it was only $418,000, under the 25 per cent schedule.Two years after the act of 1897,
when the duty on precious stones had
been reduced again to 10 per cent
and the duty on uncut stones had been removed, on which basis such items now stand, the imports rose to $17,200,000 and they have now risen
to about $40,000,000.The great argument of the jewelers is that when tariff rates on gems
are high, the business of smuggling thrives. In this connection the official statement issued by the jewelers
also says:"Foreign travel is continually increasing in popularity, especially
with women, and they are the principal buyers of the retail world. They are naturally free-traders and bargain hunters, and experience shows
that the average woman, having no
respect for a statute that interferes
with what to her is an inalienable
right to buy where she will, has no
conscientious scruples whatever
against the practice of smuggling and it will probably be a long while before even the most straight-laced and zealous collector that the port of New York may obtain will not hesitate to strip and search the women
of America on their return from abroad. Yet such a desperate course is the only possible solution of the problem, and even then, it will fail
to stop the practice of smuggling in its entirety, for the ingenuity of those who are determined to get the better of the government is beyond
description."The jewelers claim that their position is honest by arguing that an increase in duty rates would be to their advantage, as all the precious stones in their possession would increase in value the amount of the increase in revenue. Still, they declare they are against an increase in rates, as it will upset their business.From all of which it would appear

Rather Ancient?

A wag, entering an empty railway
compartment lately, happened to notice the legend, "Wait until the train stops," above the door, and thinking to have a joke on somebody, he dexterously erased the "t" in "train."
At the next station an old country dame got in and seated herself. A very heavy storm of rain came on,
and when the train drew up at the next station the good lady looked anxiously out of the window. After a short stay the train again started on its way, to the old lady's amazement.
"Yer's a purty go, sir," she said,
turning towards the heartless wag.
"An' my old man was waitin' on the platform. W'y won't they let 'e get out when it's raining?"

His Orders

"Ticket, sir," said a collector at a railway station to a gentleman, who,
having been a season-ticket holder
for some time, believed his face was
so well known that there was no need
for him to show his ticket. "My face
is my ticket," replied the gentleman,
a little annoyed. "Indeed!" said the collector, rolling back his wristbands
and displaying a most powerful fist.
"Well, my orders are to punch all
tickets passing on this platform."

Report Correct

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was once on an electioneering tour in Ontario, and,
as the elections were bitterly contested, every effort was made to stir up race and religious prejudice. One day a Quebec Liberal sent this telegram to Sir Wilfrid: "Report in circulation in this country that your children have not been baptized.
Telegraph denial." To this the Premier replied: "Sorry to say report is correct. I have no children."

Another Golf Story

A clerical correspondent is responsible for this golf anecdote bearing upon that department of the club house which has come to be known as the Nineteenth hole: A golfer who had spent a considerable time there
explaining the excellence of his own
play, the exceeding villeness of his
luck, and the amazing good fortune
by which alone his opponent had beaten him was late in arriving home."A fine game golf," his wife said,
"to keep you from your family till
this time of night."The golfer's soothing reply was:
"Never mind, my dear, it's not so
very late, and I took two halves more than Morrison at the Nineteenth Hole.""Did you?" said the lady. "Well,
I'm glad you beat him."

Down They Go

"One of my parishioners," said
the doctor, "came to me and told me
that he dreamed that a Baptist
friend of his died and went to heaven.""Well, what did he see there?" I asked."He saw St. Peter at the gate, and beyond him, through a doorway surrounded with glaring lights, and smelling of brimstone, was the devil.""What do you want?" asked St.
Peter."I want to come in," replied the immersionist.

"Well, who are you?"

"I'm a Baptist minister."

"A Baptist!" repeated St. Peter, a little puzzled. "A Baptist, eh? Well, what do you Baptists do? We didn't have any Baptists in my time when I was pope."

"Why, we baptize people."

"Baptize 'em, do you? What in?"

"Why, water."

"What, all over?"

"Yes, clear under."

"But suppose it's cold?"

"Why, down they go through the ice."The devil happened to overhear
the word ice and came forward, rubbing his hands in great glee."What did you say about ice?" he asked smiling."Why, we baptize people through the ice."

"But suppose it's 60 below zero?"

"Down they go all covered with
icicles.""That'll do," interrupted the devil,
"you just take my place; you've got something worse than fire."If You Need a Medicine

DISCUSS LOBBY BILLS

MADISON, Wis., June 4.—(Special.)—The senate judiciary committee was treated to a symposium
on lobbying as it has vicious and good influences on legislation, in a hearing on the Randolph and H. C. Martin
bills yesterday afternoon. Chief Clerk
F. M. Wylie of the senate made a vigorous argument in support of the bills, which prohibit treating and entertaining members to influence
their actions, require more detailed registration, define the scope of lobbists' privileges and provide for special aid for the secretary of state
in bringing violators to bar.

His Father's Advice

A farmer's son had the misfortune
to fall in love with two young ladies
at once. The one was a large bouncing girl of generous proportions,
the other was small and slim. In these circumstances he asked his father's advice. "Well," said his father wisely, "there's sae muckle machinery used in farmin' now-a-days
that a big, active wife is no' o' much use, so I advise you to tak' the little
ane—she'll eat less anyway."

His Talk

With an exercise book on his knees a sharp looking schoolboy sat
in the corner of the compartment
scribbling for dear life. Occasionally
he glanced through the window, evidently for inspiration, and sometimes there was an anxious frown
on his face. Impressed by the youngster's activity an old gentleman in
the opposite corner had his curiosity aroused."Can't you manage it?" he asked
in a sympathetic tone."Manage what, sir?" the youngster replied."Why, that problem you're working out for your home lessons.""Home lessons?" exclaimed the lad
with a sunny smile. "This is ten times worse than home lessons. I'm picking out my football team for Saturday, and I've got sixteen men for eleven places."The Melting
Of MollyBy
Maria Thompson
DaviesAuthor of Selina Lue; Rose
of Old Harpeth.Copyright, 1912, The Bobbs Merrill Co.What's a woman going to say when she has a tombstone thrown in her face like that? I didn't say anything, but what I thought about Aunt Adeline filled in a dreadful
pause.Perfectly dumb and quiet I sat
for an awful space of time and wondered just what I was going to do.
Could a woman lie a monument in-
to her suit case? It was beyond me at that speaking and the Molly that is ready for life quick, didn't want to. I shut my eyes, counted three to myself as I do when I go over into the cold tub, and told him all about
it. We both got a satisfactory reaction and I never enjoyed myself
so much as that before.I understand now why Judge Wade had had so many women martyr themselves over him and live
unhappily ever afterward, as everybody says Henrietta Mason is doing.
He's a very inspiring man and he
fairly bristles with fascinations.
Some men are what you call taking
and they take you if they want
you, while others are drawing and
after you are drawn to them they will consider the question of taking
you. The judge is like that.In the meantime it tingles me up to a very great degree to have a man use his eyes on me as it is the privilege of only womankind to do,
and I feel that it will be good for
his judgship for me to let him
"draw" me at least a little way. I may get hurt, but I shall at least have an interesting time of it.I started right then and got results,
for he stopped under the old lilac
bush that leans over my side gate
and kissed my hand. Old Lise shook a laugh of perfume all over
us and I believe signaled the event
at the top of his bough to the white
clump on the other side of the garden, I'm glad Aunt Adeline isn't in the flower fraternity or sorority.
Suppose she had seen or heard?And it didn't take many minutes
for me to slip into old summer-before-last—also for the last time inside of those buttons—and run
through the garden, my heart singing, "Billy, Billy, in a perfect rapture of tune. I ran past the office
door and found him in his cot almost asleep and we had a bear reunion in the rocker by the window
that made us both breathless."What did you bring me, Molly?"
he finally kissed under my right
ear."A real base-ball and bat, lover,
and an engine with five cars, a rake
and a spade and a hoe, two blow-
guns that pop a new way and something that squirts water and some other things. Will that be enough?"
I hugged him up anxiously, for sometimes he is hard to please and I might not have got the very thing
he wanted."Thank you, Molly, all them
things is what I want, but you oughter brung more'n that for three days not being here with me." Did any woman ever have a more lovely lover than that? I don't know how long I should have rocked him in the twilight if Doctor John's voice hadn't come across the hall in command."Put him down now, Mrs. Molly,
and come and say other how-do-you-
does," he called softly.It was a funny glad-to-see-him I felt as I came into the office where he was standing over by the window
looking out at my garden in its twilight glow. I think it is wrong for a woman to let her imagination kiss
a man on the back of his neck even if she has known for some time
that there is a little drake-tail to kiss of hair there just like his own son's.
I gave him my hand and a good deal more of a smile and a blush
than I intended.He very far from kissed the hand; he held it just long enough to turn me around into the light and give me one long looking-over from head to foot."Just where does that corset
press you worst?" he asked in the tone of voice he uses to say "poke
out your tongue." So much of my Tennessee shooting-blood rose to my face that it is a wonder it didn't drip; but I was cold enough to have had at forty paces if I had had a shooting-iron in my hand. As it was the coldness was the only missile
that I had, but I used it to some effect."I am making a call on a friend,
Doctor Moore, and not a consultation visit to my physician," I said,
looking into his face as though I had never seen him before."I beg your pardon, Molly," he exclaimed and his face was redder
than mine and then it went white
with mortification. I couldn't stand that."Don't do that way!" I exclaimed,
and before I knew it I had taken
hold of his hand and had it in both of mine. "I know I look as if I was shrunk or laced, but I'm not! I was going to tell you all about it and show it to you. I'm really inches bigger in the right place and just—
just 'controlled,' the woman called it, in the wrong place. Please feel me and see." And I offered myself to him for examination in the most rainless way. He's not at all like other people.The blood came back into his face
and he laughed as he gave me a little shake that pushed me away
from him. "Don't you ever scare me
like that again, child, or it might be serious," he said in the Billy-and-me tone of voice that I like some,Soda crackers are more nutritive than any other flour
food. Uneeda Biscuit are the perfect soda crackers.Though the cost is but five cents, Uneeda Biscuit are too good, too nourishing, too
crisp, to be bought merely
as an economy.Buy them because of their freshness—because of their crispness—
because of their goodness—because of their nourishment.Always 5 cents. Always fresh,
crisp and clean.

only I sleep too hard to go much

found that out on me and stopped
it the very first thing on page

little as possible to keep the nerves

would wring the sternest heart with compassion and admiration at my faithfulness—to whom?

PITTSBURG, June 4.—Mike Milko, who claims to be amateur heavyweight champion of western Pennsylvania, started to get married, but brought up sharp in police station, with bruises too numerous to detail. But you should see the seven other men. Milko felt proud and stopped on his way for a wedding license to tell the occupants of a saloon that he was the best man in the house. He whipped a bartender, a mail carrier, a few policemen and others, but was finally overpowered. If he gets out of court today he may get married yet.

He—"I would lay the world at your feet, but for one thing." She—"And that is?" He—"Some other people are using it."

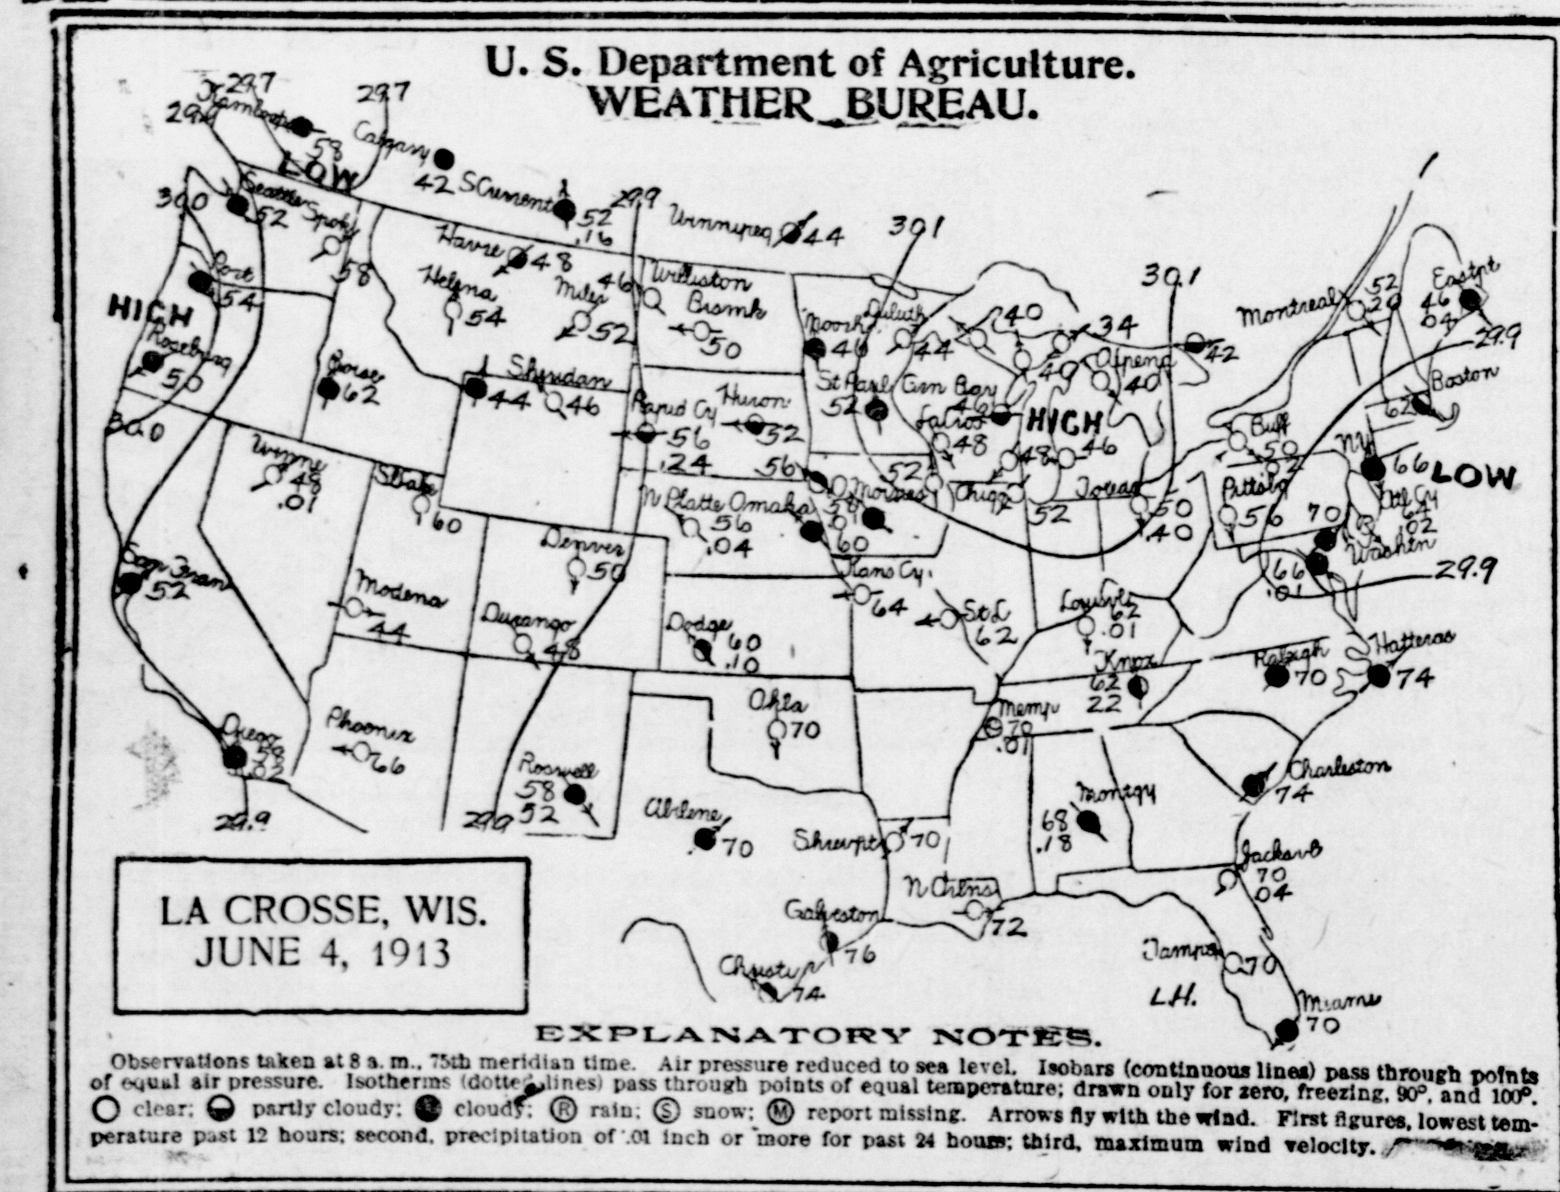

MOTOR BOAT CLUB BUILDS BOAT TRACK

The Copeland Park Motor Boat club are preparing to build a boat track running into Black river at the foot of St. Cloud street, for the use of members of the club in docking their boats for repairs, and for launching new boats.

The track is to be constructed of heavy timbers, and will contain a cradle which will be operated by a crank. The boats will be rested on the cradle when run up or down the track.

Take a cold bath if you want to, but don't try to convince unbelievers that you enjoy it; too much effort is wasted on impossible tasks.

SENATE INQUIRY AROUSES CAPITAL; MILLIONAIRE MEMBERS NOT ALL PLEASED; HAVE THEY A PERSONAL INTEREST IN TARIFF?

The muckraking investigation of the United States senate by itself has aroused Washington. Nothing just like it ever has happened before. Among those who are most displeased with it are certain millionaire senators. Senator Newlands of Nevada is one of the reputed multi-millionaire members. He is an extensive mine owner and the products of the mines are important items in the tariff bill. Senator Warren of Wyoming has vast sheep raising interests. At least three other senators are lumber barons. The investigating committee is composed of Cummins of Iowa, Reed of Missouri, Overman of North Carolina, Walsh of Montana and Nelson of Minnesota.

CITY FATHERS EAT HIGH SCHOOL FOOD

Entertained at "Nineteen Cent Dinner" as Guests of Benezet and School Board

GIRL STUDENTS SERVE THE MEAL

Benezet Talks on Development of Schools in Past and Outlines Needs of Future

Mayor Ori J. Sorensen and the aldermen from the first ten wards were the guests of Superintendent of Schools L. P. Benezet and members of the board of education at a six o'clock dinner at the high school yesterday. The remaining eleven aldermen have been invited to a similar dinner Thursday.

The delicious dinner, which Miss Anna F. Hallock, teacher of the domestic science class at the high school, estimated cost exactly nineteen cents a plate, was served by the girls of the cooking class and the city dads have not yet ceased talking about the goodness of the meal and the way it was served.

At the close of the dinner Supt. Benezet gave a short talk on the progress of the schools of the city during the last eight years and particularly the last three years. He declared that the enormous increase in attendance in the upper grades and the high school is caused directly by the change in system put into operation during the last three years. His speech contained a comparison between the La Crosse schools and those of other cities of the state and the superiority of the La Crosse schools as amply proven by his statistics caused the aldermen to open their eyes in astonishment.

Mr. Benezet also dwelt upon the future development of the schools and explained in detail the elaborate plans which have been worked out for this development. He pointed the need of increased appropriations next year if the work is to be carried through to success.

After the dinner Mr. Benezet and the school board conducted the mayor and aldermen through the new annex, explaining the workings of the manual training equipment and telling of development of this branch of the school work which is sure to come in the near future. The city officials spent more than an hour examining the elaborate apparatus in the manual training departments of the Hixon annex.

Use it once and your feet feel delightful; use it for a week and your foot troubles will be a thing of the past. "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Miss Anna Mettler and Mr. Ed Hilberg were given a surprise Tuesday evening. During their absence while they were attending a six o'clock dinner given in their honor, a crowd of their friends had gathered at the bride's home and waited for them to arrive to give them the familiar yell of "Surprise." Each of the guests brought a piece of linen consisting of napkins, towels, doilies and center pieces in form of small parcels done up very attractively which took the bride almost an hour to undo.

Ice cream and assorted cakes were served. The wedding took place at the Cathedral at 9 a. m. today with high mass. After the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents.

The excursion on the steamer G. W. Hill which was to have been given by the St. Paul's Universalist church next Saturday has been indefinitely postponed. This postponement was made necessary by the delay in the completion of the big Keokuk dam, due to the high water, the locks not having been opened to allow the steamers wintering south of the dam to pass through on their way up river.

BRIGHT-HUED GIRDLE COMPLETES EVERY DRESS

New York, June 6.—Blessed is the woman who has outgrown her early teens and awkward age! For her Dame Fashion concocts her best laid schemes. The younger generation she dismisses with one word—simplicity. It is the girl who is already launched, the woman whose place in the social world is recognized, on whom her art is concentrated. The older woman has acquired more years and consequently more poise and grace, more beauty of contour. To her dress has become art for art's sake. It was for her particularly that drapery was intended; flounces, although much worn, belong to the juvenile fille. It was for her, too, that Russian, Balkan and the loose waists in general, whose lines between bodice and sleeve are invisible, and in which the fullness lies in folds over the waistline, were designed. It was for this girl of slender lines, not for her stocky little sister, for whom a frock such as this of the first illustration was fashioned. To be sure, others than those with slim, girlish figures wear them and are really very smart in them, but it is the slender woman who lends true distinction to this style of dress. The blouse is in Balkan fashion, with waist extending well to the hip. The skirt is closely fitted, six gored, with back and front panel effect. The frock was developed in tan Ramee linen, with collar and cuffs of tan silk. A girdle of Gobelin-blue silk is carried about the dropped waist and caught on the left hip by a brass buckle, the ends hanging free. This fashion of draping the hips is one of the most attractive style features of the season. Sashes, however, of Futurist, Bulgarian or other modern silks, are not used on lingerie frocks. They are seen only on the heavier, more serviceable fabrics, as crash, agarie, ratine and linen. Ribbons in delicate tones and in French colors, pink and pale blue, are de rigueur for the charming lingerie dresses of net, fine basiste and flouncing, and also for those of shadow lace. If a more vivid tone is required apple green or turquoise blue is allowable.

The desire for brilliant color effects in street costumes has made fashionable the cotton broadcades. The quality of this material has, no doubt, had much to do with its popularity. Of delightful suppleness, it lends itself with charming effect to the soft draperies that are so artistic. The color effects, too, in this sheer cotton are original and charming. From it are fashioned dainty blouses and lovely loosely fitted jackets on Russian, Balkan and semi-negligee lines, which are woven with lingerie frocks or with separate skirts in white and pastel tones. Their ultimate purpose is rather to give a gay color note than to furnish warmth or comfort. Nevertheless, for seashore, yachting and mountain year, they will be much in evidence this season.

For wear in the city there are charming little jackets of printed chiffon or mousseline, dainty in the extreme both in fabric and design. The favorite patterns have small flouncing and decided droop at the waistline, may have opening back or front, as desired. The lower sleeves, fitting snugly to the arms and inserted at the dropped shoulder lines are made of shadow lace. The vest is also of shadow lace. The two piece skirt, with slight drapery at side-front and back, is of flouncing. A narrow girdle of Gobelin blue ribbon, with white stripe, finishes the costume.

These simple little afternoon frocks prove the greatest boon to womanhood. It is only the business woman who needs to don a tailored frock before breakfast to wear all day. The woman of more or less leisure must have something a little more distinctive for afternoon wear. In it she may be at peace with herself and her environment. She is not the active individual that the woman of affairs is obliged to be.

FORCIBLY FEEDING A MILITANT SUFFRAGETTE IN ENGLISH JAIL

Forcible feeding has practically been abandoned in Great Britain since its failure several weeks ago in the case of Mrs. Pankhurst. She was sent to prison for a long term when the campaign of bombs and burning began, but when she refused to eat and grew weak the British home secretary, Reginald McKenna, decided on a new course. She was freed, and since has been quiescent. Heretofore, the British government would not permit photographers to get pictures of this operation, and the one shown here is the first to come to the United States. In this picture it will be seen that the physician in charge is pouring fluid food down the mouth of the recalcitrant votes for women advocate.

country. Where the thing will all end is the question on everybody's lips now, even among the Mexicans as well as the Americans. We are wondering what effect the recognition of this regime by the British government is going to have on the attitude of the United States government. One thing sure, if the present regime wins out here now, the British government and people will have the favors from this government. It looks to me that the United States government is now almost in duty bound to recognize the belligerency of the rebels, so that the United States people may have such a government here as will retain the prestige of the American people. If the belligerency of the Constitutionalist cause, and not being doing everything possible to block their procedure, even to allowing the whipped federals to enter their territory for protection and then permit them to return to this country to take up arms again. If this does not indicate favoritism I don't know what it is to be called. I am afraid your prophecy about Wilson and the Mexican situation is not going to pan out as you thought.

the great progressive laws of the state been written in haste or without thorough legislative investigation and deliberation, Wisconsin's leadership would have been jeopardized and the confidence of other states that are following along the path pioneered by this state would have been shattered.

Call Down the Governor

"The senate cannot lose sight of the fact that the governor, without experience as a legislator, advises members grown gray in legislative service, members who have served in the legislature and taken active part in the working out and enactment of all of the great progressive statutes that have been written in this state in the last decade or more, upon matters purely of legislative procedure; that he even seems to force the legislature to vote upon an insufficiently considered measure, advanced by himself, without making the investigation that the history of this state teaches those old in legislative service is essential. A hasty and defective enactment is almost certain to be much worse than no enactment at all. The senate regrets that the governor sometimes acts hastily in his official capacity, and the senate realizes the more than ordinary necessity for the legislature to make its own investigations and legislate only upon facts thus brought within its own knowledge.

The recent decision of the supreme court in the case of the insurance commissioner should warn aw officials against haste and arbitrariness, and should teach them that the rights of others must be given full consideration in official acts, and that full opportunity for the presentation of every man's case must be had if this government is to be other than a despotism by those in power. This lesson applies not only to executive and administrative officials, but to the legislature in its consideration of problems that involve the rights of citizens of the state.

Need Investigation

"The water power law passed in 1911 has been declared unconstitutional by the supreme court. That decision has taken away some of the rights it was hoped the state retained in this great natural resource. Just how much remains may take another decision of the court to determine, but the legislature must retain to the people as much right as possible. To do this, to make certain that none of the rights the people have in the water powers of the state are granted away, and that no encroachment is made upon the rights of the individual property owner, so that the law may stand the test of the court, is no easy task nor one that can be done in a short time. If the law passed by this legislature falls in the court, water power development will be held up until 1915. The special conservation committee of the senate asks until next January to work out this problem.

"The subject of mothers' pensions is a new one, not only in Wisconsin but elsewhere. Very little experience and very little investigation can be found upon which to draw in drafting this law, which has been pledged to the people of the state and should be enacted by this legislature. There have been presented widely different plans, and the best friends of mothers' pensions ask that time be given to work out the problem, so that when the law shall be enacted it will be as certain of success as have been the other progressive laws of this state enacted in recent years.

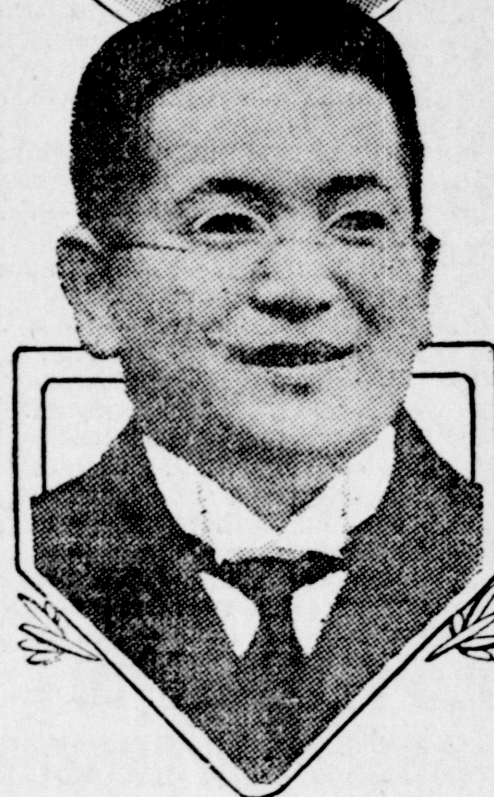

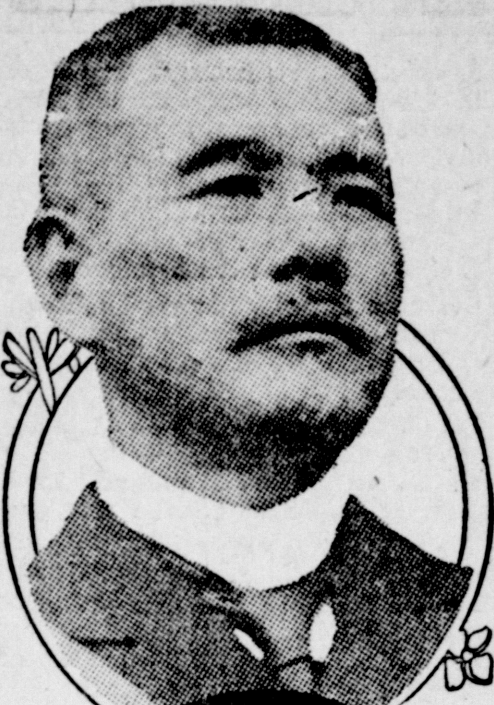

Legality Question

"The subject of direct marketing also raises serious questions of constitutionality. The direct marketing bill passed by the legislature was vetoed on the ground of unconstitutionality. Able lawyers have raised questions of constitutionality against the provisions of other bills upon direct marketing pending in the legislature. Here also are raised big questions of policy. For several years the people have been promised investigation and action in this direction. So many other big questions occupied the attention of the legislature of 1911 that but little was done upon the subject of co-operation in selling and buying. The people, however, were again promised in 1912 the pursuance of this subject. Up to this time the legislature has been so occupied with enormous amount of business poured upon it from all parts of the state that it has not been able to make the investigation and to give the consideration necessary to this subject.

"The senate insists that the subject shall be thoroughly investigated and considered, and that this shall be done by this legislature. This is possible only by the taking of a recess or by unduly prolonging this session. This legislature must give every affected interest in this matter its time for hearing, and thoroughly consider every principle of public policy laid down in the law that shall be enacted.

"A recess now until next January will not only enable this legislature to properly consider laws upon water powers, direct marketing and mothers' pensions, but with the session next January confined to the consideration of the bills introduced by the recess committees upon these three subjects, as the recess resolution provides, the legislature will not be in session more than a week or two at that time. The special session of 1905 and the special session of 1911 both demonstrate this. If the legislature does not take a recess until January, however, adjournment cannot be taken until the middle of July or perhaps until in August. A recess will not only bring about better legislation, but will bring this about at less expense to the state.

Refute Political Charge

"In his special message against a recess, the governor charged that politics actuated those who in the senate voted for the recess resolution, in the following words: 'Your predecessors in office never subordinated the duty of enacting important legislation to the allurements of fishing, farming or factional politics; and you should not think of setting the example now.' It is a fair assumption that he based this charge, in major part at least, upon the pendency of the case of the insurance commissioner in the supreme court and the defeat of the bill which was calculated to provide court review for the removal by the executive of commissioners. The decision of the court has the same effect as would the passage of such a bill, and no further reason could be imagined for this case to make any one desire a session of the legislature next January.

"The senate is convinced of the necessity for a recess, acting upon the same motives that actuated it in adopting the resolution, full investigation and consideration of the three subjects named in the resolution and the enactment of comprehensive and constructive laws upon these three subjects. The senate believes that the acts of the legislature should not be precipitated or arbitrary, whatever may be the example or wish of any other department of the state government."

SOLVE CHECK MYSTERY

ADOLPHUS BUSCH'S WEDDING PRESENT TO GRAND DAUGHTER IS $25,000 AND NOT ALLEGED MILLION

CHICAGO, June 4.—The mystery of the contents of a sealed envelope that Adolphus Busch, multi-millionaire St. Louis brewer, sent his grand daughter, Miss Lillian Magnus, as a wedding present, was solved this afternoon.

"No, it is not a check for $1,000,000," said Mrs. Jacob W. Loeb, mother of the bride, to the United Press, and she said it quite positively, "it is a check for $25,000. Of course my daughter is overjoyed. But I think all this publicity is silly—very silly."

Miss Magnus is to be married to Sydney L. Berg. The check was mailed to her in a sealed envelope, preceding the arrival of the brewer in Chicago today. On the outside was an injunction that it was not to be opened until today.

Before the seals were broken two morning newspapers announced that the check was for $1,000,000. Before Miss Magnus had eaten breakfast a crew of reporters camped on the front steps seeking information. Busch was at a local hotel but refused to be interviewed. The Loebes until this afternoon refused to be interviewed.

HEAVY SELLING IS CAUSE OF BREAK

Stocks Drop to Lowest Point Reached in Six Years When Many Unload

NEW YORK, June 4.—A general unloading of European owned securities on the stock exchange today was the real factor back of an early break in the market which carried standard issues down three points or more and to lowest levels reached in six years. Local traders were somewhat prepared for the development when a general decline was shown in the European markets. By noon the leading stocks began to make recoveries and it was believed the decline had reached its limit.

U. S. steel was subjected to heavy pressure up to noon and fell to a new low record of 54 1/2. A pronounced weakness developed in Erie, but this was said to be due to the foreign selling. There was tremendous selling in Reading, which dropped three points.

The selling throughout the morning was the heaviest known in years. The recent average has been only 250,000; yesterday was 300,000, but it was predicted a 600,000 mark might be reached before the closing today.

Allen is at the La Crosse hospital.

Mrs. Webber was one of the best known and liked women on the north side. She was a pioneer settler, having lived fifty-five years in the county and thirty-three years in the city.

HAL CHASE UP TO HIGH MARK AGAIN

When Frank Chance watched his team through the first weeks games of the season he made up his mind that Peerless Hal Chase was laying down on him and not playing the game of which he was capable. He talked of trading him, and nearly framed a deal with Boston. Right now however Chance would as soon fire Ray Keating as Chase, who played excellent ball on the western invasion. During the early season Hal was handicapped by family troubles and injuries and these were the cause of his poor showing.

LAUGHING MAN THOUGHT INSANE

MILWAUKEE, June 4.—Julius Jeswein, Milwaukee's laughing man, today continued to keep nurses and internes at Milwaukee hospital extremely busy. The month eaten quite which provoked his mirth at a local vaudeville performance. Saturday night still sticks in his memory and his occasional giggles are sternly suppressed by attendants. Physicians expressed the opinion today that Jeswein is insane. He is under close observation and if physicians become convinced that he is mentally deranged he will probably be committed to an asylum tomorrow.

Our instructions to the famous editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine were: "Get up a book of recipes of the things people like best. Find the best way to make and bake each one. Then write it out so plainly that even an inexperienced housewife can't have a failure."

"The Cook's Book" was the result. Some of the 90 recipes were originated, many of them were improved upon, and all were personally tested by this best known authority on cooking in America, and she tells so clearly how she made everything that one cannot go astray.

While some of the cakes and pastry are elaborate enough for any occasion, the recipes are all thoroughly practical and call for no expensive and unusual ingredients. In addition to telling how to make them, the book is beautifully illustrated in colors showing how to arrange and serve the dishes appetizingly.

More than half a million of "The Cook's Book" are now in use in American households. Yet the demand is constantly increasing. Many send for two or three at a time to give to friends or young housekeepers. Don't depend on borrowing one from a neighbor—have one of your own.

How to Get "The Cook's Book"

In every 25c. can of K C Baking Powder is packed a colored certificate. Send us one of these certificates (paste it on a postal card if you like) with your name, and address plainly written, and "The Cook's Book" will be mailed free of charge. Only one book for each certificate.

Socialists Declare West Virginia Miners Were Abused by Mine Guards

APPROVE SENATE INVESTIGATION

Assert that Passage of Resolution for Probe Is Victory Over the Mine Barons

CHICAGO, June 4.—Recommendation that the socialist party be represented by counsel when the senate committee begins its actual investigation of conditions in the West Virginia coal mining districts, is made in the report of the committee appointed by the national executive committee to visit West Virginia, made public today.

The committee, composed of Victor L. Berger, Eugene V. Debs and Adolph Gormez, spent more than a week in West Virginia, interviewing miners, social workers and state officials. Their report partially exonerates Governor Hatfield, on the ground that many of the acts complained of by the miners were committed under the administration of former Governor Glasscock, but Governor Hatfield's action in suppressing two socialist papers is bitterly denounced.

"The reports of the outrages perpetrated upon the defenseless miners and their families during the Glasscock administration have not in the least been exaggerated," reads the report. "Houses and tents were shot up indiscriminately from an armored train in the darkness of night; men were assaulted, and women insulted by the dastardly mine thugs, and even little children were not spared."

"A distinct victory has been achieved in forcing this senatorial investigation upon the mine barons of West Virginia in spite of their combined efforts to defeat it. All these atrocious crimes against the striking miners and their families will be brought fully to light. Every effort should be made by the miners and their friends to have the whole of these facts in all their gruesome details placed upon record. Henceforward, there will be a decided change in the situation in West Virginia."

MANZANITA'S RISE

By LOUISE MERRIFIELD

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"You see, Tommy, Lola's mother put her absolutely in my charge, and the girl's only nineteen. You're a dear old fellow, of course, and all that, but when it comes to a choice between you and the future that lies ahead of Lola Ramonez, I'm afraid you'll pine alone, Tommy."

"Are they as beastly rich as all that?"

Tommy glowered at the seascape visible beyond the deck awning. The yacht was three days out from Point Comfort, bound for Colon. Tommy had looked forward to the trip for months. As seventeenth cousin, more or less, to Wendell Mills, he was included in that gentleman's business retinue. To the general public Tommy was the Senator's confidential secretary.

Fanny Mills frankly liked the youngster. She had never become completely emancipated from the comfortable middle-class life they had led out in Iowa. The Senator's plunges into Cuban plantations and Venezuelan concessions had upset her. It took all of Tommy's tact and cheery teasing to keep her steady on her course.

"Why, Tommy, her father is the silver-mine man, don't you know, the one the senator helped to get his railroad concession through. I don't know myself how they did it, and don't want to. It makes me nervous every time he comes near Steve, but his wife's mighty sweet, and so is Lola. Pretty, isn't she, Tommy?"

Tommy looked down to where Lola was dancing with four or five other couples on the deck. She was with Beardsley Jones, too.

The girl's low laugh drifted over to where they sat. Her head with its mass of dusky hair, was too near Jones' shoulder, Tommy thought. Her lips were parted, and her eyes—no, Tommy could not detect just the expression in them that instant, but he said something under his breath, and tossed his cigarette overboard.

"Have you said anything at all to her?"

"I have," retorted Tommy.

"Mr. Jones is a friend of her father's. I heard Steve say he was the New York end of the wire."

"He'll be the Atlantic end of the wire if he doesn't let Lola alone," Tommy remarked savagely. "There's the senator's buzzer. Excuse me."

He walked down the deck toward the companionway, and Lola stopped dancing at sight of his face. Jones waited for her with a look of placid compliance that denoted proprietorship.

"You're not dancing?" Lola smiled. "And you're worried, too. Is it this horrible business again?"

"Sorry, but the buzzer calls me. I must obey."

"Do you know whether the Senator has heard from my father by wireless?" She spoke in a lower tone and a trifle hurriedly. "Mr. Jones was telling me no word had come."

"He's a—" Tommy checked his sentiments. "There have been several messages from your father. I myself gave two to the steward this morning, and he said he would hand them to your maid."

"I did not receive them." Her dark eyes flashed.

"Our dance, please, Miss Lola," called Jones lazily.

"Meet me here in half an hour," said Tommy.

Below in the private cabin the Senator's genial face looked troubled. "Tommy, boy, we're in a mess," he plunged at once. "Beardsley has been monkeying with stocks. Ramonez gave him the reins, and he's queered him."

"Intentionally?"

"Oh, he'll wriggle out of it. We've tried to run the mine on clean lines. I've put enough cash into it to keep it firm, and the stock's been going up a few points steadily. We've been willing to wait development. Ramonez and I. There's real stuff down in the hole, and I know it. I'm not a bit afraid. Beardsley works in the other way. He's been flashing the color too soon. The stock's so full of gas now that another puff and she'll blow up in mid air."

Tommy leaned forward thoughtfully.

"Wonder why he didn't give Miss Ramonez her two messages from her father. She didn't get them. I wouldn't put it past Jones to have bribed the steward to drop them overboard."

"Not overboard," came Jones's placid voice behind them. "I have them in my pocket. Do you know what they said?"

He lit a cigarette, and smiled at the two men.

"Return New York by rail. That was one. What's the other, Tommy?"

"Jones discredited," Tommy prompted, his eyes keen with challenging anger. "And you kept them after bribing the Jap?"

"Why not?" Jones asked coolly.

Mills tossed in a slip of paper to Tommy.

"Dixon, the wireless operator, sent that to me ten minutes ago. You can read it aloud."

Tommy obeyed. "Manzanita boomed to death. Jones crooked. Loss complete."

Jones frowned. "I dislike dealing with these South Americans and their volcanic temperaments." He paused a moment. Tommy, looking past him, saw Lola and Mrs. Mills enter the cabin and stand listening. "Ramonez is just as crooked as anyone else if you like to use that word in deals of this sort. So were you,

TO SPEND SUMMER ON WYOMING RANCH

Miss Margery Aleshire.

Miss Margery Aleshire, the younger daughter of Brigadier General and Mrs. J. B. Aleshire, is to leave Washington soon with her mother and elder sister to spend the summer on a Wyoming ranch. Miss Aleshire is well known and popular in Washington, where she is a leader in the younger army set.

Senator. You joined hands with us two, and assured us you could land the concession through your pull in Washington."

"Sit still, Tommy," warned the old Senator.

"I had no money to put in. My share was brains. I was to handle the New York end, and get stock listed, keep it steady, advertise, be a good mixer with the men who buy. And for that I got what? Orders to remember my place."

"One of your orders was not to make a move in booming the stock until we gave the word, wasn't it? You had no authority to start it up until it was on a paying basis, until we could legitimately swell it. You know why I'm going south on this trip. Man, those concessions aren't ours yet. The papers aren't signed. As a cold matter of fact, we've got no more right to handle Manzanita stock than we have Kimberley in South Africa, not a bit. You've let the horses run away, Jones. And another thing," the Senator's voice was a bit husky here. He laid his hand on Tommy's shoulder. "That stock doesn't belong to me. I bought it for Tommy here. He's worked for me about seven years, since he came out of college. Now, Jones, I'm going to let you drop the full length of your rope. Manzanita can go to the bottom of the sea if it likes. I'm going to put Tommy Burns here at the head of the new company, and—"

Lola's soft contralto voice rose from the end of the room.

"Pardon, Senator Mills! My fortune from my mother is very large. Save Manzanita for me, and yet put Mr. Burns at its head."

Jones's face whitened. He gave her one long look.

"Suppose you take it up as partners, and I'll back the boy myself," smiled the senator. "You're young enough to wait for Manzanita to grow, I guess. Er—Tommy, just tell Captain Markby we're putting in at

to Charleston to let Mr. Jones off."

Lola slipped ahead of him, flushed and triumphant. For an instant Tommy paused when they were alone. He gripped her two hands in his.

"He said partners, Lola. Are we?"

"Mrs. Mills is coming. Let me go."

"Marry me at Colon? Before Fate puts another kink in the rope."

SLAYER DIES PRAYING

AUBURN, N. Y., June 4.—Michael Goslinski, 26, of Buffalo, was electrocuted in Auburn prison early today. On entering the death chamber he glanced at the witnesses ranged about the room and then began to pray. He continued his prayers until the current snuffed out his life. Goslinski killed Patrolman George M. Claus of Buffalo in a street fight.

Wife and I Are Friends of INSTANT POSTUM

"There's a Reason"

"I used to drink coffee—was nervous and irritable. Wife said so.

"So when the new food-drink, Instant Postum, came along she said to herself: 'Here's where I break Jack of the coffee habit.'

"Instant Postum is good stuff. I sleep better, smile more, and miss my indigestion."

A level teaspoonful of Instant Postum in an ordinary cup of hot water dissolves instantly and makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water.

Do You Keep Cows or Do Cows Keep You?

If it costs you four cents a quart to produce your milk and you are compelled to sell it for three cents a quart—"you're keeping the cows."

Wilbur J. Fraser, the dairy farming expert of the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station, says that "keeping cows" is not only bad business, but unnecessary—and he proves his statement. Right now he is making "cows keep him"—making them produce milk that is sold at a profit. Some of his methods he worked out himself, others he obtained from successful dairymen in various parts of the country. He tells all about these methods and outlines a complete plan for re-organizing a dairy and putting it on a paying basis, in a series of articles, the first of which

Mr. CHARLES MARRIOTT'S New Novel

THE CATFISH

The man who wrote this book is a great man. He steps by this performance, to a place among the great realistic-idealistic novelists of the last thirty years. It is impossible as one reads not to think of such men as George Meredith, George Moore, Samuel Butler and Arnold Bennett. Yet there is no slightest trace of resemblance to any of these authors in style or content.

"It is without any question a piece of literature, fine and true and beautiful to a very unusual degree."

—Richard Burton

"The Catfish is a reincarnation of the old classic novel and is wonderfully well-drawn from start to finish, being a veritable life history, it seems to me. I recommend it highly."

—James Whitcomb Riley.

FOREIGN MARKETS

BARGAINS—Why say, the usual bargains are jokes compared with what we have to offer on the balance of this stock: It is absurd that every piano isn't sold now, considering our prices and terms. We know from experience many people are skeptical. We saw an excellent illustration of this two weeks ago in Chipewa Falls, Wis. A man desiring to make another man a present of $10 in appreciation for a service rendered, offered him a $20 bill, asking for $10 in exchange, the man replied: "You can't work off a counterfeit $20 bill on me," and it took some time to persuade him that the bill was good. Are you one of the kind who lets golden opportunities slip by without even an investigation? Our stock is mostly new. We have a few used and second hand pianos.

Bring in a little dollar bill, with a willingness to pay a few more on installments and see what you can do.

Call and make us an offer on the $1,000 Baldwin Manuallo Player on our floor.

Watching The Scoreboard

Errors by Bush, Vitt, Cobb and Stange with the Athletics opposing him were more than Dauss could beat. Baker neglected to get a home run but Collins connected for a triple and home run.

Groom struck out twelve of the St. Louis Browns and a wild pitch by Hamilton and passed ball by Agnew let in the runs that tied up and won the game for Washington. Red Ames, cast aside by the Giants for Fromme, pitched a three hit game against Brooklyn. It was the sixth 1 to 0 defeat hung on the Dodgers this season.

While this was going on the Giants downed the Cardinals without a great deal of trouble and now have a clear title to second place.

The Pirates had on their batting clothes against Boston and hit Tyler for four doubles and two triples.

The Yankees have yet to win a game on their home lot. They fell down in their fifteenth attempt yesterday and the official records will give Falkenberg credit for ten straight victories, though the Naps were one run behind in the seventh when Lajoie went in to pinch hit.
